

BPWC Sparks Vacant Lot Clean-up Action

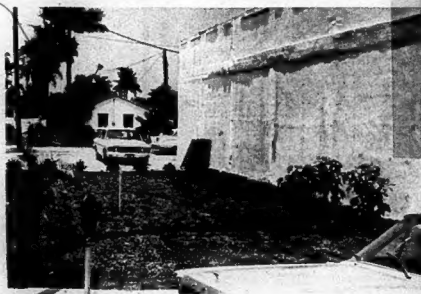

Another vacant lot in Belle Glade was cleaned up and landscaped this past week through the efforts of local citizens, the Business and Professional Woman's Club and the Belle Glade Beautification Committee.

Located between the G.A.C. Finance and Red Shutter buildings on Avenue A, the eyecore was adopted as the project for the year by the BPWC, with Mrs. Ruth Enfinger, chairman of the committee and representative of the club on the Beautification Committee.

Working with Mrs. Enfinger were BPWC members: Mrs. Pearl Taylor, Mrs. Gladys Jones and Mrs. Juanita Croft.

The lot was first cleaned off by the City of Belle Glade and filled in. Then to make a "good story" short: Pony Phillips, measured the lot for the right amount of it; Lomas Amerise, foreman for Triangle Sod Company, donated it; M. C. Ward, hauled it. Seashore Supply unloaded it and the Belle Glade Jayces placed it.

BPWC members paid for the landscaping and shrubs, which came to about $160, said Mrs. Enfinger.

'68 Rambler Yearbook Dedicated To Faculty, Students, Citizens

In a student body assembly, Wednesday morning, the staff of the yearbook, Rambler '68, broke with tradition and expressed the originality of their time by dedicating their annual to the staff and faculty of Belle Glade High, and the citizens of Belle Glade. Sponsor for the yearbook is Mrs. Sue Teets, English teacher and instructor for the Journalism class which writes the weekly Ram Page in the Herald.

WE DEDICATE THE 1968 RAMBLER TO...

MEMORIES OF TODAY
CHALLENGES OF TOMORROW
Remembering, yet leaving—all of it.

The faculty who tried so hard:
The cold, still classrooms—reflecting knowledge—

Knowledge we learned;
Belle Glade—it's flashes of...
Black earth, buildings, fields—

home;
The people, friends or strangers—
Good-by, good-by, good-by.

We reach out to accept tomorrow—
With its reality and responsibility,
Leadership and command—all in our hands.

We choose the road to take.
Where it leads, we're not sure,
But there stands no one to stop us.

Yet, how many roads must we travel,
Before we find the right one?
We all have our hang-ups,
What went before—good and bad,
Learn from both, and try again.

Alone—no, that won't get it.
For we need our fellow man,
And in the words of the wise ones—

"God isn't dead. He isn't even dying."

It's not Haight-Ashbury, nor tall white towers—
They're going nowhere.
It's courage, patience, and keeping with it.

They'll make tomorrow be.
And so—we turn and say "Hello."
To tomorrow... and tomorrow...
And tomorrow.

1st Methodist In Pahokee Burned Mon.

The sanctuary and old Sunday School rooms, of the First Methodist Church of Pahokee, 491 East Main Street, were gutted by fire early Monday morning according to Reverend John A. Briley, pastor, who was notified at 6:15 a.m.
The blaze was spotted by a passing trucker around 5:00 a.m. who called the Pahokee Fire Department from a diner across the street. However, the trucker went on his way before anyone could discover his name or thank him.
"The original buildings of the church built in 1925 by Reverend Joe Toie, who is now in Sebring, Florida, were gutted to the rafters and two pews and an organ were destroyed along with the church hymnals and the living room furniture which we had upstairs," said Rev. Briley concerning the damage of the fire. "What was left by the fire, was ruined by the water," he added.
The fire did not reach the outlying new Sunday School buildings and the members plan to start from scratch in rebuilding their burned church stated the pastor. Members of the church worked Monday, following the fire, trying to salvage what they could of the pews.
Lt. Raymond Trammell of the Belle Glade Fire Department took two Scott breathing apparatuses and 2 extra canisters which contained chemicals to purify the smoky air in Pahokee, enabling the firemen to enter the buildings.
Electrical wiring is suspected to be the cause of the fire, reported a spokesman for the Pahokee Fire Department Monday afternoon.

Atrazine makes cane labor more profitable.

As weed killers, hand laborers are just too costly. But they're indispensable for other vital cane growing jobs. So use them for those jobs. Not for weed control.

Weed control in the job for Atrazine. The herbicide most recommended for growing clean sugarcane.

The reason is, it works. Atrazine controls most annual broadleaf and grassy weeds, including perillory weed, lambsquarters, crabgrass, pigweed and others.

And it does it easily, economically. Without damaging the crop. Without irritating the applicator. And reduces or eliminates costly hand labor.

The payoff is a bigger yield. Mainly, because Atrazine cleans sugarcane has all the soil nutrients, moisture and sunlight to itself. And weeds can't stop proper tillering.

In the past, weed control may have been something you got around to if you had the time and the labor.

But not anymore. Not now Atrazine makes weed control so profitable.

If you're not using Atrazine yet, you may not be making the most efficient use of your labor and equipment.

Check with your supplier, for the more information write up.

THOUGHT OF THE WEEK

Superstition, idolatry, and hypocrisy have ample wages but truth goes a begging.

MARTIN LUTHER

SENSING THE NEWS

By Thurmon Sensing
EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Southern States Industrial Council

With many innocent people dead, with more than 100 cities torn by riot and arson, with the millions of dollars, the United States has suffered a blow that is truly staggering. It behooves every businessman and community leader to ponder the meaning of the shameful disaster visited by savagery in the streets and to consider what can be done to prevent such outbreaks in the future.

First, however, it is essential to clear the air of the confusion that spread over the country in the wake of the death of Martin Luther King Jr. Hundreds of thousands of words have been spoken on television and in the newspapers of Dr. King's "dream." But the harsh truth is that the philosophy of "social revolution" was not truly non-violent. The campaigns of civil disobedience that he led constituted an incitement to riot. In the final days before his shocking death, he was preparing a new mass march in defiance of a court order.

The nation must hope that in the aftermath of the orgy of destruction there will be a clearer understanding of the ugly truth of civil disobedience. For more than a century, the Negro has been shouting "freedom now!" It turns out that "freedom now" means freedom to riot liquor stores, to burn credit records, to pull innocent people from their homes and stab them, to break plate glass windows, and to set on fire stores and dwelling places. The chant of "freedom now," the call to civil disobedience, and the contemptuous disregard for the law have culminated in an internal wreckage of our country on an unprecedented scale.

Part of the tragedy is that civil disobedience has been encouraged by unthinking or unscrupulous men in high places. "Revolution" has been a pet word among big game hunters in government bureaucracy and in the academic world.

Now the American people have seen the true face of "social revolution" in the streets rising above the national capital and other cities of this great country.

Shockingly, there has been very little effort to trace the riots to their roots — to the spokes of non-violence and to the advocates of civil disobedience. The United States cannot live with the myth of benevolent marches and protest movements. The mass action promoted by the advocates of "social revolution" is alien to the United States, destructive of the true American dream of liberty within the law.

Riots cannot be prevented in the future by paying tribute to rioters, whether in the form of new special privilege legislation or by additional federal hand-outs. The time for that kind of appeasement is past. The need now is for the strong defense of law and order, for far-reaching measures to return peace and civic obedience to the troubled cities of the United States.

"If law and order" were an issue a month ago, it certainly is the prime issue in the aftermath of the early April riots. Gradually, over the years, law and order have been retreating in America. More and more cities became dangerous to their own inhabitants. Overnight, many cities became battlegrounds as urban terrorists or fire, robbed stores and fired at policemen and firefighters.

Property was not adequately protected during the early April riots. Riots were looted and property was destroyed and watched. This was not the fault of the police. They needed the respect of the national authority for firm and better measures. In future, looters must be named so that they will be shot.

The American people are enormously tolerant. They are slow to anger. But they have had enough. Taxpayers are entitled to civil government that is determined to smash those who would turn great cities and peaceful towns into jungles. But the roots of the riots must also be pulled up. These roots are entangled in "liberal" myths about civil disobedience and social protest. Disorderly marches and lawless campaigns in the streets must be stopped. They threaten the people of good will and respectability of the nation and the walks of life. Law and order must overcome the agitators and the "social revolution" in America.

He earned his second award of the medal last August when he prevented the installation of a potential surface-to-air (SAM) missile site near the demilitarized zone. The F-105 pilot destroyed vehicles and sporting equipment for two SAM launchers and ignited 60 secondary explosions in the target area.

A week later, he overcame adverse weather, cut through heavy cloud banks and dodged blistering antiaircraft fire to hit a vital North Vietnamese command and earn his third DFC.

Lisbon, Portugal

Many things impress one in the City of Lisbon. Besides the large number of large, ornate buildings, are the old buildings of three or four stories with the first completely made of squares of tile. Most of these are blue and white, though a few have yellow and green.

Our guide was proud to tell us that Portugal was the first country to perfect drift blue in tile and ceramics. Many of the older houses have a foot square tile by the front door with the owner's name or a picture.

We saw white peacocks also black and white swans. The baby white swans are yellow like chickens. In the poorer sections, the family wash is done by hand in large vats of water and hung out on balconies, fences or on the grass.

A few miles out of the city in the Royal Palace of Cuaius, which since the Revolution, has been used as a museum. One wing is reserved for visiting dignitaries. President Eisenhower stayed here for five days. Queen Elizabeth has also been a guest here.

This was built two-hundred years ago. There are many designs of parquet floors. The most interesting ones are where the designs radiate from the center like the spokes of a wheel. When made of different colored wood, the result is very interesting. Some of the antique carved furniture is made of Jacaranda.

There are many impressive tables with inlaid marble tops. The marble is of many colors — from white and cream to red and black. In one large room there were twelve picture panels, each one measuring 42 1/2 feet. These were all blue and white tile and had varied designs — Biblical scenes, Chinese, African and many tropical pictures of bananas, palms, etc.

Every room had a chandelier and many of them were clear glass. One especially beautiful and unusual one was of iron and glass, which were probably hand blown in Venice.

Many rooms were furnished in Chippendale, Louis XIV and Louis XV. Since this palace was ransacked at the time of the Revolution, it is amazing that these antiques are still preserved. Their target is still seen. We had lunch here and an hour's shopping.

SCENES IN PORTUGAL

There are at least fifteen million dollars worth of pictures here and we were required to check our cameras. These pictures are from Italy and France and are of the Renaissance period. The women were noticeably dainty in appearance. The furniture was decorated with gold figures as many of the painters were also sculptors.

After passing through many small towns that had narrow streets and always one or more right angle corners, we reached the delightful town of Sintra. The vegetation is more unusual than anywhere else seen. We had lunch here and an hour's shopping.

Post-High School Age Fellowship Being Formed

A fellowship of young people is being formed at the Everglades Presbyterian Church in Belle Glade for the purpose of learning about and sharing Jesus Christ through action, study, and fellowship. An interesting variety of activities to reach this purpose is anticipated.

The group is planned for young people of post-high school age, and includes both students working and those attending colleges and universities. A breakfast and study of John Chapter 11 was held on Easter morning at the lovely home of the Riedels. On April 21, a visit was made to the Corporal Institute where a Wisconsin Service was enjoyed with the inmates at the All Souls Church.

Future plans call for an overnight camping retreat at Camp Everglades near Immokalee under the capable leadership of Miss Jeanette Riedel. (If you are interested call her at 996-2722 or Oris Edmunds at 996-2995). You'll be welcomed!

Witnesses Set 3-Day Seminar

"Increasing civil disorders and lawlessness make it imperative that Christian parents be taught to inculcate in their youth a love for lawfulness and respect for authority." This statement was made by James Summers, local overseer of Jehovah's witnesses, while urging parents to attend each session of the forthcoming circuit convention at Fort Lauderdale's Dillard High School, April 26-28.

Principal speaker at the seminar will be Charles G. Thompson, District Supervisor, who speaks April 26 on "Why Does God Permit Wickedness?" Delegates in excess of 1500 are expected to attend. Continuing Summers said "Early Christianity achieved spectacular success in changing men's lives and thinking but not at the expense of lawfulness."

Winn-Dixie Observes Fla. Products Week

Under official proclamation of Gov. Claude Kirk, "Florida Products Week" is being observed to emphasize the fact that the state's 6,000,000 citizens are eating better today than at any time in history—and at a relatively lower cost. Hundreds of Winn-Dixie and Kwik-Chek supermarkets thru out the South are observing the eighth annual Dixie Products event April 23-May 4 with full displays of home-grown products. Proclamations also have been issued by other Southern governors.

In his proclamation, Gov. Kirk said: "Florida's citrus production leads the world. Our state has taken first place in the winter production of snap beans, tomatoes, cabbage, sweet corn, cucumbers, egg plant, green peppers, radishes, water-melon, and second in celery produced for the fresh market."

"Florida dairymen are averaging a higher milk production per cow than the production of the other 13 Southern states. Our many other agricultural industries are producing quality products for shipment to all corners of America and to foreign countries."

"Therefore, I urge all persons, firms and businesses to pay tribute April 23-May 4 to Florida agriculture which has helped give us the highest standard of living in the world."

The company last year spent $92,214,746 on salaries, $17,145,231 on occupancy costs, $3,200,225 on local taxes (including social security taxes), $42,855,570 on advertising, and $7,459,224 on utilities.

Economists tell us that food is more of a bargain today than ever before. Walcott added, "Not many people realize just how low the profits of a supermarket really are."

Whittemore Breaks Record

Belle Glade's Mark Whittemore broke two records at the Suncoast Conference Western Division Track Meet last Wednesday. Mark is a Senior this year as well as a returning letterman on the track team.

He won the 100 yard dash in a record 9.7. After breaking this Western Division record, Mark went on to run the 220 yard in a record 21.7. This is the second best time for the State.

Although Belle Glade finished third in the meet, Mark's outstanding wins were a great boost for the team's spirits.

Boca Raton won the track meet with Jupiter placing second.

The Bard

Ladies Gentlemen and fellow bards. As you all know, I am best qualified among the people of this mighty country to be poet laureate.

In past years, I have written such ballads as The Dying Swan, From Sin to Salvation. This gives unrealistic view to the problem and hope from obscurity by listening and following the wisdom of my words.

Other meager bards such as Henry Riccio and Dennis Connell who write fluff and have been ostracized from their positions.

In closing I would like to ask you to look at the facts and pull lever 1A and elect me, Bruce Miller as poet laureate.

Thank you.

Freedoms

By KATHY MORRIS
All of the freedoms granted to us in the constitution are being abused by our world today. One that is taking a lot of abuse is the freedom of the press.

Several times in the past few weeks I've heard people complaining about the lack of news coverage of the outstanding events. The front page is so full of murders, robberies, and rapes that they seldom leave space to announce an honor. The pages are full of violence with minority groups gaining much recognition. These problems need to be presented to the citizens but only if they can be presented factually and not blown out of proportion.

The hippies with their pot make front pages but when an average teen group helps with a community project, it gets a back page if it gets there at all. This gives unrealistic view to the problem and hope from obscurity by listening and following the wisdom of my words.

Other meager bards such as Henry Riccio and Dennis Connell who write fluff and have been ostracized from their positions.

In closing I would like to ask you to look at the facts and pull lever 1A and elect me, Bruce Miller as poet laureate.

Thank you.
The Bard

The press is wrong when they do not stick strictly to the facts but we are equally guilty because we have caused them to do it. Their business is to sell papers, and if we the citizens refuse to buy the paper unless it was good reporting and had a non-violent front page the papers surely would not print it nor the newscasters report it.

We also use our means of communication wrongly. We use our freedom of speech wrong when we spread gossip, spread rumors or express our opinion about someone should give him a chance these last two six weeks. If the student can pull up his grades and become suddenly more studious, he might deserve to pass. If not, he's not mature enough to even think about graduation.

Also some students have decided to start an attitude concerning courses other than the required courses needed to pass. They say these aren't needed to graduate, so why bother. But have they never thought about the result of their attitude, or of their succeeding chances in college?

Seniors, especially, are faced with many decisions to make. Some have come to the conclusion of giving up, while others are struggling and fighting their problems, and are determined to succeed.

No, it's not really too late to graduate. As a matter of fact, it's not too late to do anything.

My Existence

By SHARON WALLS
I asked myself, my reason for being.
What is my purpose, why do I live?
Is it enough existing, breathing, seeing?
There has to be something, I too can give!

I search my mind, why was I put here.
What is my aim, this plan just for me?
If God and His wisdom will tell me very clear
My part in this creation, though small it may be.

The world is so big, so much to be done
I want to be helpful, where do I go?
There's a battle to fight, a race to be won
So hard is the waiting, so much I must know.

What ever my lot, what ever my reason,
I pray to the God who has wisdom to give.
What ever the need, when ever the season
The world was left better because I did live!

Dissappointment

Rams Go To Key West

Friday morning of Easter weekend, the Rams left for Key West to play the Coconchos taking the trip in the Ram bus, the team arrived around 3:30. Prior to the game, the boys were exercised and prepared for the game that night.

At 7:30 the game began and it was a hard fought battle. The bottom of the third put the Coconchos ahead 3-0, but due to a home run, Gary Remondino, Jorge Rodriguez, and Henry Riccio scored to put the Rams ahead 4-3.

The score remained 4-3 until the bottom of the 7th when a Coconchos hit base scored after a good hit. The game ended 5-4, and the Rams returned to their bunks for a "good night's rest."

Saturday, at 2:00, the Rams took on the Coconchos once more. Losing the game, 3-0, they were ready to return home after an enjoyable weekend.

Is it too Late?

Some people, especially seniors, have developed the attitude that it is too late to graduate. Some feel that if they can make it next year, or get a job and make it without their teachers, they should be passing grade anyway.

This is a very poor attitude, especially among those that are going to be on their own next year. It is not only shows that they are not trying, but that they really don't care.

The teacher is also faced with a problem. Should he let the student pass so he can finish high school, or take the chance of having the student quit school and not even graduating? The teacher might feel that it is his instruction that made the student fail. If this is true, why are others passing?

Also some students have decided to start an attitude concerning courses other than the required courses needed to pass. They say these aren't needed to graduate, so why bother. But have they never thought about the result of their attitude, or of their succeeding chances in college?

Seniors, especially, are faced with many decisions to make. Some have come to the conclusion of giving up, while others are struggling and fighting their problems, and are determined to succeed.

No, it's not really too late to graduate. As a matter of fact, it's not too late to do anything.

The Hippie Dance

About 150 students, dressed in Hippie outfits Friday night, made the Beta Club dance a big success. Everything was complete with a great band—"The Rent of Us" colored lights, Hippie posters, Diddies, fresh flowers and even incense smoking.

Kathryn Smith, Ivy Lou Barrett, Carol Betts, Barbara Dexter, Dick Hooker and all those who contributed to the decorations did a good job. Gerald Walton, Andy Ballant, Woody Brandson, Kenny Glass and Skip Laum provided music that was outstanding in adding to the mood and atmosphere. The band is newly formed but each of the boys puts his all into making it the best!

The students' outfits were authentic, colorful and unusual as "Flower Power" filled the school gym. President Dick Hooker announced the winners after Mr. Troy Sanders, Miss Maggie Powell and Mrs. Joanne Melnik had judged the costumes. 55 gift certificates from Kahala and The Golden Churns were given to Eddie Prevatt and Francis McCormick.

An eleven hour "unofficial" hippie joined the couples on the dance floor and also did a go-go on the stage. Although at press time there is no proof, many observers said the flower child had a recent assemblance to one of our BGHS teachers!

Congratulations go to all of the Beta Club members for a well planned Friday night.

How To Cut College Cost

Every year, a college education becomes more important for future success, and it also becomes much more expensive. In the school year 1966-67, the average public university student spent approximately a total of $2,000 going to school. At private colleges the total was around $3,100. In the school year 70-71 these averages are expected to raise about $500.

How does one go about meeting costs like these? Here are a few suggestions that could help.

1. Select the right college—Remember that the more expensive colleges are not always the best. Select one to fit your needs.

2. Know all you can about scholarships, jobs, and loans—Check with your chosen colleges and talk with the financial aid directors. They will do all they can to help you.

3. Don't overestimate the amount of help you can get—Grants and scholarships are based not only on ability, but need.

Above all, though, remember that if the family and the student start planning early, any good student can earn a degree. At times the going can be rough, but stick with it. You will be glad you did.

Book Review

In writing the Lord of the Flies, William Golding is trying to prove that the shape of a society depends upon the ethics of the individual and not on any political system.

The Lord of the Flies tells of a group of boys who are stranded on an uninhabited island. Ralph, a sensible boy of twelve, becomes the leader with the help of Piggy, the intellectual. The book tells of the struggles they have keeping the signal fire going, providing food and shelter, and keeping order and civilization in effect.

This is a very difficult because Jack, who has a spark of wildness, proceeds to become leader by the use of violence. The true character of the individual shows through. There is the interaction between their once civilized society and the savage environment. In this struggle some of the boys are murdered because of their unwillingness to conform.

The struggle between Ralph and Jack represents the struggle in modern society for power and control.
